UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

RODNEY J. QUIGLEY, No. C-11-6212 EMC Plaintiff,
v.
VERIZON WIRELESS, et al.,
Defendants.

ORDER GRANTING IN PART AND DENYING IN PART CONVERGENT
DEFENDANTS' MOTION TO DISMISS
(Docket No. 46)

Previously, the Court granted a motion to dismiss filed by Convergent Resources, Inc. and ER Solutions, Inc. (“ER”), now known as Convergent Outsourcing, Inc. The Court dismissed with prejudice all of the claims asserted by Plaintiff Rodney J. Quigley, except for the claim for violation of the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act (“FDCPA”). The Court gave Mr. Quigley leave to amend that claim. The Court also instructed Mr. Quigley that, if he intended to name any parent companies of ER as defendants, he had to include allegations establishing a basis for parent liability. See Docket No. 42 (order). Subsequently, Mr. Quigley filed an amended complaint, in which the main defendants (i.e., the only defendants who have not settled) are as follows: (1) Convergent Resources, Inc.; (2) ER; (3) Convergent Outsourcing, Inc.; (4) Convergent Resources Holdings, LLC; and (5) Silver Oak Services Partners, LLC.¹ These defendants shall be referred to collectively as the Convergent Defendants. Currently pending before the Court is a motion to dismiss filed by the Convergent Defendants.

¹ Although five different companies are identified as defendants, there are actually only three defendants – i.e., ER (now known as Convergent Outsourcing, Inc.), Convergent Resources Holdings, LLC (formerly known as Convergent Resources, Inc.), and Silver Oak Services Partners, LLC.

1 Having considered the parties' briefs and the oral argument presented at the hearing on the 2 motion to dismiss, the Court hereby GRANTS in part and DENIES in part the Convergent
3 Defendants' motion.

4 I. FACTUAL & PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

5 In his amended complaint, Mr. Quigley alleges as follows.

6 In August 2008, Mr. Quigley entered into a contract with Cellco Partnership for 24 months
7 of wireless service at a rate of about $160 per month. See FAC ¶ 15.

8 In August 2009, Cellco added an unknown charge of about $20 to Mr. Quigley's bill. See 9 FAC ¶ 17. Mr. Quigley asked Cellco why he was being assessed this charge. After Cellco was 10 unable to explain or justify the charge, he told Cellco that he would not pay it. See FAC ¶¶ 18-19.

11 In September 2009, Cellco once again added an unknown charge of about $250 to Mr.
12 Quigley's bill. See FAC ¶ 20. Mr. Quigley again contacted Cellco about the charge and no 13 explanation was given. See FAC ¶ 20.

14 In October 2009, Cellco sent Mr. Quigley a letter stating that he owed $67.75 for the period
15 August to October 2009. See FAC ¶ 21. (Presumably, Mr. Quigley had been assessed another $20 16 for the month of October 2009, thus raising the total charge to more than $60.) In response, Mr.
17 Quigley refused to pay and terminated his contract with Cellco. See FAC ¶ 23. In addition, Mr.
18 Quigley sent a letter to Cellco in which he, inter alia, denied the debt and demanded that it verify its 19 debt claim. See FAC ¶ 24.

20 On February 4, 2010, a collection agency the name of North Shore Agency (not a defendant 21 in the case) sent a letter to Mr. Quigley on Cellco's behalf. In the letter, North Shore Agency stated 22 that Mr. Quigley owed $467.75. The additional $400 was imposed as an early termination fee. See
23 FAC ¶ 27.

24 On February 11, 2010, ER first started to take action regarding the alleged debt owed to 25 Cellco. More specifically, ER called Mr. Quigley's son on this date and asked him for information
26 about Mr. Quigley. See FAC ¶ 28. ER called Mr. Quigley's son four additional times thereafter –
27 i.e., March 4, April 5, April 7, and April 8, 2010 – each time asking for the same information. See 28 FAC ¶¶ 29, 32, 34-35.

1 In addition, ER sent Mr. Quigley a letter on April 5, 2010, demanding payment of $551.94,
 2 see Compl. ¶ 31, and called Mr. Quigley himself on April 10, 2010. See Compl. ¶ 36. Mr. Quigley
 3 also alleges that, during this timeframe, ER reported to Experian – on two different occasions – a 4 “false derogatory tradeline” against him. FAC ¶¶ 30, 33. According to Mr. Quigley, ER
 5 misrepresented to Experian that it was Cellco. See FAC ¶¶ 30, 33. During the April 10 phone call,
 6 Mr. Quigley denied that he owed Cellco money and “gave ER the stark ultimatum to cease all 7 collection activity including the calls to [his] son.” FAC ¶ 36.

8 The next day, April 11, 2010, Mr. Quigley sent a letter to Cellco (doing business as Verizon 9 Wireless), ER, and Convergent Resources, Inc. (as well as other companies), in which he demanded 10 that they stop all “collection activities” and “credit reporting” against him. FAC, Ex. A (Letter at 2).
 11 In addition, Mr. Quigley demanded that they provide him with a “timely ‘verification’ of any claim 12 that [he] owe[d] anything to anyone.” FAC, Ex. A (Letter at 2).

13 On April 29, 2010, Mr. Quigley received a letter from Cellco (Verizon Wireless), stating that 14 we are able to confirm that the remaining balance of $467.75 is valid
 15 and owed. The charges are composed of your final month of service 16 as reflected on your November 16, 2009, statement. This includes $210.00 in early termination fees, various taxes and surcharges, and a past-due balance of $218.21.

17 FAC, Ex. B. Cellco further informed Mr. Quigley that “this debt has been sold to an outside 18 collections agency, ER Solutions.” FAC, Ex. B. The letter did not indicate when the debt had been 19 sold.

20 Although Cellco provided the above verification to Mr. Quigley, Mr. Quigley never received 21 a verification from ER or Convergent Resources, Inc. See FAC ¶ 38.² In addition, in spite of Mr.
 22 Quigley’s demand, ER continued to report false tradelines to credit reporting agencies. See FAC ¶¶
 23 40, 48-49. As of the date of the FAC, false tradelines were reported at least 22 different times. See 24 FAC ¶ 49.

 26 ² In this paragraph, Mr. Quigley actually alleges that neither Cellco nor the Convergent Defendants provided him with a verification. See FAC ¶ 38. However, Exhibit B attached to the 27 complaint establishes that Cellco at least did send a verification. In the complaint, Mr. Quigley tries 28 to discount the verification, stating that Cellco simply sent a “circular letter alleging that the $467.75 in charges were ‘proper’ because they are supported by past bills . . . the same bills I was questioning.” FAC ¶ 39.

1 On September 16, 2011, Mr. Quigley received a letter from a company hired by the 2 Convergent Defendants (i.e., CBC), in which the company offered to settle the debt claim for 3 $140.33. See FAC ¶ 44. It appears that Mr. Quigley never agreed to make a payment of any kind to 4 the Convergent Defendants.

5 Based on, inter alia, the above allegations, Mr. Quigley has brought various FDCPA claims
6 against the Convergent Defendants. In addition, Mr. Quigley has included in his amended complaint
7 claims for violation of California and Arizona state law – even though the Court’s order allowed him
8 to amend only his FDCPA claim.

II. DISCUSSION

10 | A. Legal Standard

11 The Convergent Defendants have moved to dismiss the complaint pursuant to Federal Rule 12 of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6). A motion to dismiss based on Rule 12(b)(6) challenges the legal 13 sufficiency of the claims alleged. See Parks Sch. of Bus. v. Symington, 51 F.3d 1480, 1484 (9th Cir.
14 1995). In considering such a motion, a court must take all allegations of material fact as true and 15 construe them in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party, although “conclusory allegations 16 of law and unwarranted inferences are insufficient to avoid a Rule 12(b)(6) dismissal.” Cousins v.
17 Lockyer, 568 F.3d 1063, 1067 (9th Cir. 2009). While “a complaint need not contain detailed factual 18 allegations . . . it must plead ‘enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.’” Id.
19 “A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to 20 draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged.” Ashcroft v.
21 Iqbal, 129 S. Ct. 1937, 1949 (2009); see also Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 556 (2007).
22 “The plausibility standard is not akin to a ‘probability requirement,’ but it asks for more than sheer 23 possibility that a defendant acted unlawfully.” Id. at 1949.

24 | B. Parent Liability

25 The Court addresses first the Convergent Defendants' argument that the parent companies of 26 ER – i.e., Convergent Resources Holdings LLC and Silver Oak Services Partners LLC – should be 27 dismissed from the case because Mr. Quigley has failed to adequately allege a basis for parent 28 liability.

1 Based on the complaint, it appears that Mr. Quigley seeks to hold the parent companies liable
2 on an alter ego theory. He alleges, for example, that “ER’s day-to-day operations are closely
3 controlled and managed by Silver Oak Services Partners and/or its immediate parent company
4 Convergent Resources Holdings, LLC.” FAC ¶ 5(a). He also alleges that the “day-to-day
5 operations [of Convergent Resources Holdings, LLC] are supervised and closely managed and 6 controlled by Silver Oak Services Partners LLC.” FAC ¶ 5(b).

7 In determining whether alter ego liability applies, a federal court applies the law of the forum
8 state. See Schwarzkopf v. Brimes, 626 F.3d 1032, 1037 (9th Cir. 2010) (applying California alter
9 ego law in a federal bankruptcy case); Towe Antique Ford Found. v. IRS, 999 F.2d 1387, 1391 (9th
10 Cir. 1993) (“apply[ing] the law of the forum state in determining whether a corporation is an alter 11 ego of the taxpayer”).

12 California recognizes alter ego liability where two conditions
13 are met: First, where “there is such a unity of interest and ownership 14 that the individuality, or separateness, of the said person and 15 corporation has ceased;” and, second, where “adherence to the fiction
16 of the separate existence of the corporation would . . . sanction a fraud 17 or promote injustice.”

18 Schwarzkopf, 626 F.3d at 1037. “Factors suggesting an alter ego relationship include the 19 commingling of funds and other assets, the failure to segregate funds of separate entities, the 20 disregard of legal formalities, or the manipulation of assets between entities so as to concentrate the 21 assets in one and the liabilities in another.” FDIC v. CoreLogic Valuation Servs., LLC, No. SA CV 22 11-0704 DOC (ANx), 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 131956, at *26 (C.D. Cal. Nov. 14, 2011).

23 At least two California district courts have held that broad allegations of control are not 24 enough to establish alter ego liability because they are too conclusory. In Corelogic, for example,
25 the district court held that the FDIC failed to adequately allege alter ego liability where, inter alia, it 26 simply “aver[red] in conclusory language that CoreLogic, First American Information Services, and 27 First American Solutions directed and controlled EA’s actions with regard to the appraisal services 28 provided by EA to WaMu.” Id. at *27. The court also noted that the allegations did not establish 29 that “an inequitable result would result from treatment of the corporation [EA] as a sole actor.” Id.
30 at *28.

1 Similarly, in United States EEOC v. American Laser Ctrs. LLC, No.
2 1:09-CV-2247-AWI-DLB, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 82851 (E.D. Cal. Aug. 13, 2010), the district
3 court determined that the EEOC failed to adequately allege alter ego liability based on allegations
4 that each defendant “acted ‘as a successor, alter ego, joint employer, integrated enterprise, agent, 5 employee....’ or ‘under the direction and control of the others.’” Id. at *13. The court stated that 6 this was “merely a conclusory allegation.” Id.

7 District courts outside of California have rendered similar opinions. See, e.g., Holzli v.
8 Deluca Enters., No. 11-06148 (JBS/KMW), 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 38880, at *7 (D.N.J. Mar. 21, 9 2012) (stating that “‘bare-boned allegations of undercapitalization and common control and/or 10 management, standing alone, do not rise to the level of plausibility required to survive a 12(b)(6)
11 motion’”; adding that “‘parroting of the alter-ego factors alone is insufficient to satisfy the required 12 pleading standards’”); Haley Paint Co. v. E.I. Dupont De Nemours & Co., 775 F. Supp. 2d 790, 799
13 (D. Md. 2011) (noting that, “[a]side from making broad assertions regarding Cristal’s ‘control over
14 Millennium’s marketing, purchasing, pricing, management, and/or operating policies,’ and Cristal’s
15 ‘role in approving Millennium’s significant business decisions, Plaintiffs provide no facts
16 whatsoever in support of these claims[;] [u]nder Twombly and Iqbal, Plaintiffs’ conclusory 17 allegations are not entitled to the presumption of truth”); Apex Mar. Co. v. OHM Enters., No. 10 18 Civ. 8119 (SAS), 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 35707, at *14-15 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 30, 2011) (noting that, 19 “[a]lthough the domination and control prong of the alter ego theory need only comply with Rule
20 8(a)’s liberal pleading standard, conclusory statements are insufficient”; “[h]ere, the Complaint lacks 21 any factual allegations supporting the conclusion that Amin and Bedi exercised domination and 22 control over OHM or STARCO [–] “[t]he unadorned invocation of dominion and control is simply 23 not enough”); see also Sunlight Elec. Contr. Co. v. Turchi, No. 08-5834, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 24 104192, at *11 n.6 (E.D. Pa. Sept. 13, 2011) (noting that “[l]egal conclusions masquerading as 25 factual conclusions will not suffice to circumvent a motion to dismiss,’ so we need not credit such 26 conclusory allegations in ruling on defendants’ motion”).

27 Consistent with the above authority, the Court concludes that Mr. Quigley’s broad 28 allegations of control, standing alone, are not sufficient to meet the Rule 8 standard laid out in

1 Twombly and Iqbal. Therefore, the Court dismisses all claims asserted against the parent companies.
2 The dismissal is without prejudice.

3 C. FDCPA Claim – §§ 1692b(3) and 1692c(b)

4 In his complaint, Mr. Quigley pleads two FDCPA claims based on ER’s five 5 communications with his son. Those claims assert violations of 15 U.S.C. §§ 1692b(3) and 6 1692c(b).

7 1. Section 1692b(3)

8 Section 1692(b)(3) provides that

9 [a]ny debt collector communicating with any person other than the 10 consumer for the purpose of acquiring location information about the 11 consumer shall . . . not communicate with any such person more than 12 once unless requested to do so by such person or unless the debt collector reasonably believes that the earlier response of such person is erroneous or incomplete and that such person now has correct or complete location information.

13 15 U.S.C. § 1692b(3). “Location information” is defined in 15 U.S.C. § 1692a(7) as “a consumer’s
14 place of abode and his telephone number at such place, or his place of employment.” 15 U.S.C. § 15 1692a(7). In his complaint, Mr. Quigley alleges that ER knew his “physical location, mailing 16 address and telephone number.” FAC ¶ 59.

17 At the hearing, ER argued that physical location and mailing address does not necessarily 18 translate to place of abode, let alone place of employment. ER also pointed out that the statute 19 requires the telephone number at the place of abode. In response, Mr. Quigley indicated that he was 20 willing to amend his complaint a second time to make clear that ER knew his location information 21 as defined by § 1692a(7) (i.e., his place of abode and his telephone number at such place, as well as 22 his place of employment). Accordingly, the Court dismisses the § 1692b(3) claim but gives Mr.
23 Quigley leave to amend to make clear that, at all times when ER was communicating with his son, it 24 knew of his place of abode, his telephone number at such place, and his place of employment. Such 25 allegations will suffice to state a claim under § 1692(b)(3).

27 ///

28 ///

1 2. Section 1692c(b)

2 Section 1692c covers communications in connection with debt collection generally.

3 Subsection (b) covers communications with third parties specifically. The statute provides as 4 follows:5 Except as provided in section 804 [15 U.S.C. § 1692b], without the 6 prior consent of the consumer given directly to the debt collector, or 7 the express permission of a court of competent jurisdiction, or as 8 reasonably necessary to effectuate a postjudgment judicial remedy, a 9 debt collector may not communicate, in connection with the collection
10 of any debt, with any person other than the consumer, his attorney, a 11 consumer reporting agency if otherwise permitted by law, the creditor, 12 the attorney of the creditor, or the attorney of the debt collector.

10 15 U.S.C. § 1692c(b) (emphasis added).

11 In the instant case, the critical language is the language italicized above. Essentially, §
12 1692c(b) prohibits communications with third parties except as provided in § 1692b – and, as noted 13 above, § 1692b(3) allows for communication with a third party to obtain location information. The 14 § 1692c(b) claim, therefore, rises or falls with the § 1692b(3) claim. Accordingly, the Court 15 dismisses the § 1692c(b) claim but, as above, gives Mr. Quigley leave to amend to make clear that,
16 at all times when ER was communicating with his son, it knew of his place of abode, his telephone 17 number at such place, and his place of employment.18 D. FDCPA Claim – § 1692e(2), (8)19 Section 1692e prohibits a debt collector from “us[ing] any false, deceptive, or misleading 20 representation or means in connection with the collection of any debt.” Id. § 1692e. Section 1692e 21 further provides that the following conduct is a violation of the statute:

22 (2) The false representation of –

23 (A) the character, amount, or legal status of any debt; or

24 (B) any services rendered or compensation which may be 25 lawfully received by any debt collector for the collection of a debt.26 (8) Communicating or threatening to communicate to any person 27 credit information which is known or which should be known to be false, including the failure to communicate that a disputed debt is disputed.

1 Id. § 1692e(2), (8).

2 Although not entirely clear, it appears that Mr. Quigley's § 1692e(2) claim is based on the 3 allegation that ER was asserting a debt even though it knew that the Cellco charges were actually
 4 improper. See FAC ¶ 75 (alleging that “[t]he un-explained charges that appears on my Cellco bills
 5 for August, September and October 2009 are charges that Cellco and Convergent knew to be 6 improper and illegal under Cellco's service contract with me”). As for the § 1692e(8) claim, that
 7 appears to be based on the allegation that ER reported a false tradeline to a credit reporting agency
 8 multiple times. See FAC ¶ 77.

9 As the Convergent Defendants point out, Mr. Quigley's § 1692e(2) claim is based on ER 10 allegedly knowing that the Cellco charges were improper. The problem for Mr. Quigley is that he 11 has simply alleged in conclusory terms that ER knew this fact with providing any supporting factual 12 allegations. This FDCPA claim, therefore, is dismissed but without prejudice. Mr. Quigley has 13 leave to amend to include factual allegations establishing how ER knew that the Cellco charges were 14 improper. Simply because ER purchased the debt from Cellco is, in and of itself, insufficient to 15 establish that ER knew that the charges were improper.

16 As for the § 1692e(8) claim, it too is problematic, at least in part. To the extent Mr. Quigley
 17 asserts a § 1692e(8) claim based on ER's reporting a false tradeline to a credit reporting agency 18 multiple times, it suffers from the same flaw as the § 1692e(2) claim – i.e., Mr. Quigley has failed to 19 allege how ER knew that he Cellco charges were improper.

20 Mr. Quigley, however, also indicates that ER violated § 1692e(8) in two other ways: (1) 21 because it failed to report to the credit reporting agencies that Mr. Quigley disputed the debt, and (2) 22 because ER misrepresented to the credit reporting agencies that Cellco was reporting the debt when 23 in fact ER was doing so. See Opp'n at 8. The first claim appears to be viable. See, e.g., Wilhelm v.
24 Credico, Inc., 519 F.3d 416, 418 (8th Cir. 2008) (taking note of 1988 Staff Commentary on FDCPA, 25 which states that, “[i]f a debt collector knows that a debt is disputed by the consumer . . . and 26 reports it to a credit bureau, he must report it as disputed”)³. As for the second claim, it too appears

27 ³ In Mellinger v. Midwestern Audit Service, No. 11-CV-11326, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS
 28 15325 (E.D. Mich. Feb. 8, 2012), a district court held that a defendant is entitled to presume that a debt is valid and does not have an obligation to communicate that the debt is disputed when

1 viable – to the extent it is based on ER’s reporting the debt after it had purchased the debt from 2 Cellco.⁴ However, the Court finds that the complaint, as currently pled, does not allege this 3 specifically. Nor does the complaint allege that ER did more than simply indicate to the agencies 4 that the underlying debt was originally owed to Cellco. Accordingly, the Court concludes that, as 5 the complaint currently stands, Mr. Quigley has only stated a claim for relief based on § 1692e(8) to 6 the extent he alleges that ER failed to report to the credit reporting agencies that Mr. Quigley 7 disputed the debt. The other parts of the § 1692e(8) claim are dismissed with leave to amend.

8 E. FDCPA Claim – § 1692g

9 Section 1692g deals with validation of debts. It provides in relevant part as follows:

- 10 (a) Notice of debt; contents. Within five days after the initial 11 communication with a consumer in connection with the 12 collection of any debt, a debt collector shall, unless the 13 following information is contained in the initial 14 communication or the consumer has paid the debt, send the 15 consumer a written notice containing –
 - 16 (1) the amount of the debt;
 - 17 (2) the name of the creditor to whom the debt is owed;
 - 18 (3) a statement that unless the consumer, within thirty days 19 after receipt of the notice, disputes the validity of the 20 debt, or any portion thereof, the debt will be assumed to 21 be valid by the debt collector;
 - 22 (4) a statement that if the consumer notifies the debt 23 collector in writing within the thirty-day period that the 24 debt, or any portion thereof, is disputed, *the debt
 25 collector will obtain verification of the debt or a copy 26 of a judgment against the consumer and a copy of such 27 verification or judgment will be mailed to the consumer by the debt collector*; and
 - 28 (5) a statement that, upon the consumer’s written request within the thirty-day period, the debt collector will provide the consumer with the name and address of the original creditor, if different from the current creditor.
- 29 (b) Disputed debts. If the consumer notifies the debt collector in 30 writing within the thirty-day period described in subsection (a) 31 that the debt, or any portion thereof, is disputed, or that the

32 reporting it to credit agencies if the plaintiff does not dispute the debt within the thirty days required 33 by 15 U.S.C. § 1692g(a)(3).

34 ⁴ As noted above, it is not clear when the purchase took place.

1 consumer requests the name and address of the original 2 creditor, the debt collector shall cease collection of the debt, or 3 any disputed portion thereof, until the debt collector obtains verification of the debt or a copy of a judgment, or the name and address of the original creditor, and a copy of such verification or judgment, or name and address of the original creditor, is mailed to the consumer by the debt collector.
 4 Collection activities and communications that do not otherwise
 5 violate this title may continue during the 30-day period
 6 referred to in subsection (a) unless the consumer has notified 7 the debt collector in writing that the debt, or any portion of the 8 debt, is disputed or that the consumer requests the name and 9 address of the original creditor. Any collection activities and communication during the 30-day period may not overshadow or be inconsistent with the disclosure of the consumer's right to dispute the debt or request the name and address of the original creditor.

10 15 U.S.C. § 1692g(a)-(b) (emphasis added).

11 In his complaint, Mr. Quigley alleges that ER violated § 1692g by failing to respond to his 12 request for verification of the debt and thereafter continuing to attempt to collect. See FAC ¶ 76.

13 By alleging the above, Mr. Quigley has adequately pled a claim for relief – in particular, a 14 claim pursuant to § 1692g(b). In their motion to dismiss, the Convergent Defendants focus on 15 compliance with § 1692g(a), see Mot. at 13 (stating that “there was no requirement for ER[] to send 16 a debt validation notice because ER[] had already provided the requisite notices to plaintiff”)

 17 (emphasis in original), but that is beside the point because Mr. Quigley’s claim seems to be 18 predicated on subsection (b), not (a). The Court assumes Mr. Quigley is asserting a claim only 19 under § 1692(g)(b) and denies the motion to dismiss as to that claim.⁵

20 F. FDCPA Claim – § 1692f

21 Section 1692f provides that “[a] debt collector may not use unfair or unconscionable means 22 to collect or attempt to collect any debt.” Id. § 1692f. Although not entirely clear, Mr. Quigley

23 ⁵ That being said, the Court does take note that, even though ER did not respond to Mr.
 24 Quigley’s request for a verification (at least as alleged), Cellco did (although Mr. Quigley claims to 25 the contrary). Given Cellco’s verification letter of April 29, 2010, see FAC, Ex. B (letter), any 26 actual damage to Mr. Quigley as a result of ER’s failure to respond may well amount to nothing.
 27 For similar reasons, any request for statutory damages may be problematic. See 15 U.S.C. § 28 1692k(a) (providing that a debt collector who fails to comply is liable to the person for “any actual damage sustained by such person as a result of such failure” and “such additional damages as the court may allow, but not exceeding $1,000”); id. § 1692k(b) (providing that factors for a court to consider include “the frequency and persistence of noncompliance by the debt collector, the nature of such noncompliance, and the extent to which such noncompliance was intentional”). At this juncture, however, the Court makes no concrete ruling on damages.

1 seems to making a claim pursuant to § 1692f based on (1) ER's five telephone calls to his son and 2 (2) ER's reporting of a false tradeline to a credit reporting agency on multiple occasions. As the 3 Convergent Defendants point out, this claim is largely redundant of other FDCPA claims as 4 discussed above. Therefore, the Court dismisses this claim as duplicative. See, e.g., Wood v.
 5 Midland Credit Mgmt., No. CV 05-3881 FMC (MANx), 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 31923, at *5-6
 6 (C.D. Cal. July 29, 2005) (noting that the plaintiff failed to "allege[] that the Defendant's actions
 7 violated any specific subsection of § 1692f"; adding that, to the extent the plaintiff "allege[d] that 8 the Defendant has violated § 1692f by failing to provide the Plaintiff, upon written request, with 9 verification of the validity of the debt, and persisting in attempts to collect the debt[,] . . . the proper 10 vehicle for this type of claim is § 1692g(b), and not § 1692f" and so dismissing the § 1692f claim as 11 "redundant").

12 G. Violation of the California Rosenthal Act

13 As noted above, the Court allowed Mr. Quigley to amend his FDCPA claim but, in the 14 amended complaint, he included not only FDCPA claims but also a claim pursuant to the California 15 Rosenthal Act. See Cal. Civ. Code § 1788 et seq. Although not entirely clear, Mr. Quigley seems to 16 be making a Rosenthal Act claim based on (1) ER's five telephone calls to his son and (2) ER's 17 reporting of a false tradeline to a credit reporting agency on multiple occasions.

18 The problem for Mr. Rosenthal is that he has not pinpointed how this conduct constitutes a 19 violation of the Rosenthal Act. However, the Act does require a debt collector to comply with the 20 FDCPA (§§ 1692b to 1692j), see Cal. Civ. Code § 1788.17 (noting that failure to comply with the 21 FDCPA provisions shall subject a debt collector to FDCPA remedies in § 1692k), and not all the 22 FDCPA claims are being dismissed. The Court thus denies the motion to dismiss the Rosenthal Act 23 claim to the extent any of the FDCPA claims survive dismissal.

24 H. Violation of Arizona Law

25 Finally, Mr. Quigley's Arizona law claims (which the Court did not give Mr. Quigley leave 26 to add in its last order) are based on one statute and one regulation, namely Arizona Revised Statute 27 § 32-1053(3) and Arizona Administrative Code R20-4-1511.

28

1 The statute-based claim is dismissed because, as the Convergent Defendants argue, there is 2 nothing about the statute to indicate that it gives right to a private right of action. The statute
3 provides in relevant part that “[t]he superintendent may deny a license to a person or suspend or 4 revoke a license . . . if the superintendent finds that an applicant or licensee [e.g.] [h]as violated any 5 applicable law, rule or order.” Ariz. Rev. Stat. § 32-1053(3). Nor does Mr. Quigley cite any case 6 holding that there is a private right of action under the statute.

7 As for the regulation-based claim, Arizona Administrative Code R20-4-1511 does bar a 8 collection agency from “us[ing] unauthorized or oppressive tactics designed to harass any person to 9 pay a debt.” Ariz. Admin. Code R20-4-1511. However, the regulation specifies that a collection 10 agency who violates the regulation is subject to penalties listed in Arizona Revised Statute § 32-11 1056(B) – none of which is civil damages. See Ariz. Rev. Stat. § 32-1056(B) (referring to 12 revocation of a license and a class 1 misdemeanor). While the administrative code also states that a 13 debt collector is further subject to “other liabilities imposed under any other provision of law,” Ariz.
14 Admin. Code R20-4-1511, Mr. Quigley has not pointed to another provision of law which provides 15 for civil damages for the conduct at issue.

16 | Accordingly, the Arizona-based claims are dismissed with prejudice.

III. CONCLUSION

18 For the foregoing reasons, the Convergent Defendants' motion to dismiss is granted in part 19 and denied in part. More specifically, the Court rules as follows.

20 (1) All claims against the parent companies of ER are dismissed without prejudice.

21 (2) The motion to dismiss the §§ 1692b(3) and 1692c(b) claims is granted. However, Mr.

22 Quigley has leave to amend the claim to make clear that, at all times when ER was communicating

23 with his son, it knew of his place of abode, his telephone number at such place, and his place of 24 employment.

25 (3) The motion to dismiss the § 1692e(2) claim is granted. However, Mr. Quigley has leave to 26 amend to include factual allegations establishing how ER knew that the Cellco charges were 27 improper.

1 (4) The motion to dismiss the § 1692e(8) claim is granted in part and denied in part. The claim
2 is dismissed to the extent Mr. Quigley asserts a claim based on ER's reporting a false tradeline to a 3 credit reporting agency multiple times. As noted above, Mr. Quigley does not allege how ER knew 4 that the Cellco charges were improper. The § 1692e(8) claim is also dismissed to the extent Mr.
5 Quigley asserts a claim that ER misrepresented to the credit reporting agencies that Cellco was 6 reporting the debt when in fact ER was doing so. The complaint does not clearly allege that ER
7 reported the debt after it had purchased the debt from Cellco, nor does the complaint allege that ER
8 did more than simply indicate to the agencies that the underlying debt was originally owed to Cellco.
9 However, the § 1692e(8) is not dismissed to the extent Mr. Quigley alleges that ER failed to report 10 to the credit reporting agencies that Mr. Quigley disputed the debt. To the extent the Court has 11 dismissed parts of the § 1692e(8) claim, Mr. Quigley has leave to amend to address the deficiencies 12 above.

13 (5) The motion to dismiss the § 1692g(b) claim is denied. The Court assumes Mr. Quigley is not 14 asserting a claim under § 1692g(a).

15 (6) The motion to dismiss the § 1692f claim is granted. The dismissal is without prejudice.

16 (7) The motion to dismiss the Rosenthal Act claim is granted in part and denied in part. The 17 Rosenthal claim rises or falls with the FDCPA claims.

18 (8) The motion to dismiss the Arizona-based claims is granted. The dismissal is with prejudice.

With respect to those claims where the Court has expressly allowed an amendment, Mr. Quigley must file an amended complaint within thirty (30) days of the date of this order. No amendments, except for those expressly permitted by this order, are allowed. The Court emphasizes that, pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 11, Mr. Quigley must have a good faith basis for any factual allegation that he makes in his amendment or he risks being subjected to sanctions.

6 This order disposes of Docket No. 46.

8 IT IS SO ORDERED.
